

Good news. Half of Plantation Estates has lights now. The back part of the neighborhood now has power. The front section is being worked on right now.

The square that has power is: Briarfield Drive to Gainswood West to Oakley Drive to Seven Oaks (Power on Melrose stops at Briarfield, which means the front part of Melrose is still out. Power on Seven Oaks stops at Carl St., so again the front part is still out. If you live in that square section of the back section, you now have power. Oak Alley has street light, but no houses yet. Should be real soon

Also, we had some reports of sewage backing up in the neighborhood. Some reports were on Seven Oaks. Also, the lift station next to John Combel's house on Oakley was close to overflowing. John Combel helped them vacuum out the sewage and even loaned the Parish his generator to get the lift station working for all of us. Later power was restored and its functioning again. Combel's idol is Superman and I'm beginning to see the similarity with getting things done. He helps with every major project and event in our neighborhood and certainly someone you can always count on to help out. Don't want this to sound like an advertisement, however Plantation Estates certainly benefits from his efforts and wanted to say thanks for his help all the time. John - - - Thanks for helping with the lift station. (See attached photo)

More updates coming as I receive them.

Thanks,

Charlie III
