

As of 12:00 midnight - Confirmed by several PE homeowners who have returned and drove the entire neighborhood for me tonight. Still no power in Plantation Estates.

With this latest news, I thought this article on WDSU is fitting to mentioned for those considering returning home.

..... "In Jefferson Parish, which reopened to all residents Wednesday, officials reported that most of their sewage stations were out of service because there was no power. The parish urged residents not to flush toilets, wash clothes or dishes, or even take showers, worried that an overwhelmed system will backup and send sewage overflowing in home and businesses.

"This is a bit of concern," parish spokeswoman Patricia Borne said. "We don't know how many people will be coming in."

Entire article posted here (Click link below or paste in your web browser)
<http://www.wdsu.com/news/17382190/detail.html>